

AWAKEN, MY LOVE

you
me
the dawn
the mist
the window
the smallest of light
collects on the dawn of your neck and I drink from your fountain and I sleep like the earliest bird returning home from the longest of nights and
you press
your chin
into my chest and I used to be the bird but now I am most certainly the home.